SBRSA Reveals Plans To Increase Capacity In Meeting of Mayors

Caught in a crossfire between member municipalities that want the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority to move forward on expanding its River Road sewage treatment plant and those that want to phase in the expansion to allow other infrastructure improvements to catch up, the Authority has an ace up its sleeve that may placate both sides.

In the middle of a sometimes acerbic meeting of the mayors of the downstream municipalities last Wednesday night, Authority chairman Ezra L. Bixby revealed that the SBRSA has begun construction on a $2.8 million "plant protection line" to provide additional hydraulic capacity. When construction is completed early in 1989, the Authority would be in a position to apply for a capacity re-rating to 11.4 million gallons per day, Mr. Bixby said.

The River Road treatment nt is rated to treat 10 million ions a day. The Authority s applied to the Department Environmental Protection or a re-rating of the plant to increase the capacity by 800,000 gallons per day and says it can treat that amount without any additional construction.

Existing flows range from 6.5 to 7.5 million gallons per day, except under rainfall conditions when double that amount may pass through the system. However, the Authority has approved requests from developers and projects in member municipalities totalling more than three million gallons per day. That brings the allocated total to 9.61 mgd, or very close to the 10 mgd rated capacity.

In the short range, there are additional requests related to Mt. Laurel housing that are presently awaiting disposition

Princetons Will Take Fight Against Water Rate Hike to State Board

The Borough and Township have joined forces to fight the proposed 9.5 percent rate increase requested by the Elizabethtown Water Company. The two municipalities have hired Princeton attorney Bill Potter to represent them before the State Board of Public Utilities (BPU) as it considers the Elizabethtown request.

On June 30, Mr. Potter submitted a formal petition to intervene with Administrative Law Judge Edith Klinger. This states that the Princetons have been adversely affected by the low quality of service, and that before the BPU takes action to approve any increase, Elizabethtown must demonstrate safe, adequate and proper service to the people of the Princetons.

The public hearings on the increase began in Newark this week. Mr. Potter, formerly an attorney with the State Public Advocate's Office and the State Department of Energy, plans to submit testimony by expert witnesses by August 15. One witness will be an engineering firm that will do a network study of the Elizabethtown system to assure that it can pump enough water to the Princetons while also supplying other customers.

"Elizabethtown has been on a major expansion drive," said Mr. Potter, "selling large quantities of water to Monroe Township, Cranbury, and Ocean County, among others.

He added that much of the water to serve its other customers comes from its plant in Bridgewater. This is pumped through Princeton, which also acts as a storage area and reservoir for outlying areas. He noted, for example, that the John Street tank is a water storage area for West Windsor. "As these areas grow, they draw water from us," he said.

Princeton Fire Chief Richard McKee and Borough Fire Inspector Bill Majewski have submitted affidavits in suport of the intervention, said Mr. Potter. These state that there is a fire hydrant emergency in Princeton. Mr. Potter also pointed out that Princeton University, severely affected by pressure problems, is working closely with the two towns in this process.

Just as You Suspected: July One of Hottest Ever

As Princeton emerges from one of the hottest and wettest Julys in its history, Weatherman David Ludlum holds out little hope for a break in the heat. He does say, however, that Canadian air usually comes down to this area about the 15th of August, creating showers and some cooling.

The Canadian air arrived at the Vermont border on Monday. But, alas, it reversed its path and headed northward again. "We're rooting for it," said Mr. Ludlum, who pointed out that the summers of 1983

Improved Water Pressure for Downtown Is Goal Of Water Company Work, Set to Begin This Week

Beginning (probably) Monday, Witherspoon Street, from Nassau to Paul Robeson Place, will be excavated by Elizabethtown Water Company and a new underground water main installed. This will begin what Elizabethtown describes as its long-range program to improve water pressure in Princeton.

Elizabethtown officials have told the Borough that the digging will be completed by Labor Day — something area merchants fervently hope will be true. They are concerned that the work will continue into September. "September is very crucial to most businesses in town," said Irv Urken of Urken Hardware on Witherspoon Street. "The town runs on an academic year, and business is significant when people return to town."

Sharon Lanahan, of Richard's Shoes, urged Borough Council not to allow excavation on Witherspoon Street from September to December. However, she also expressed concern about the water pressure on Nassau Street — one of the town's worst low-pressure spots. "I'm worried, with a 110-year-old house next to a restaurant," she said. "I'm worried because some of my tenants have had to go home to mother to shower. And I'm worried about fire."

A public meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, August 3, at 6:30 p.m. at Borough Hall to discuss details of the Witherspoon construction schedule. One thing to be ironed out is whether the work would be done mostly by day — something residents would prefer and businesses would dislike — or by night, when the reverse is true.

Ray Wadsworth, a Borough businessman and former

Water Rate

The Princetons are the only formal intervener among municipalities served by Elizabethtown. But, said the attorney, there have been a number of protests to the BPU, including many from fire companies. Fire hydrant service is billed under a separate rate, and this is slated to go up 18 percent, he said.

Mr. Potter said there was substantial precedent for the BPU to deny or delay a rate increase for a water company if it is found not to be meeting standards of service. But, he added, the BPU has never done this for a large or major water company, and Elizabethtown is one of the major water companies in the State.

October 27 is the final date of the BPU public hearings. A decision on the increase will probably come before the end of the year.

Elizabethtown employee, told Council last week that he believes the Witherspoon work, as well as the installation of water mains beneath other streets in town, will not help Princeton all that much, but will help Elizabethtown more. "Before you let Elizabethtown come in and tear the town apart, we should sit down and look this over carefully," he said.

However, it was decided afterward to comply with Elizabethtown's request to lay new water pipes under Princeton Streets. Council President Marvin Reed pointed out that Borough Engineer Carl Peters advised not putting the municipality in a position of telling Elizabethtown not to put in the new pipes. Mr. Peters pointed out that if anything goes wrong, the fault would then be the Borough's — not Elizabethtown's.

"I'm not sure the new pipes will solve the problem completely," said Mr. Reed, "but it's worth trying to keep a reasonable amount of pressure in the central part of town."

The roadways to be dug up, beginning shortly, include sections of Paul Robeson Place, Wiggins, Terhune, Ewing, Linden Lane, Murray Place, Nassau, and Prospect. Although Elizabethtown officials say the work will be completed by October, Mr. Reed cautioned that the town cannot be torn up in more than one place at a time, "or we won't have traffic moving at all."

One area to watch will be on Hamilton, near Linden Lane. Scheduled in this vicinity in the near future are sewer rehabilitation, installation of new underground water pipes, major street reconstruction, and the groundbreaking for the Borough's affordable housing program.

Mr. Reed said the water work will be done first, then the sewers. "And we would like to get the housing done before the street reconstruction."

Environmentalist and Friend of Princeton

James C. Sayen, whose obituary appears on page 36, was an active and highly committed environmentalist for much of his life. His devotion to the environment has left an imprint not only on Princeton, but on the area surrounding it.

Mr. Sayen, a Borough representative on the Princeton Regional Planning Board, was a major voice for open space preservation and for the preservation of the semi-rural character of Princeton. During the last year, although very ill, he was unflagging in his efforts to prevent Princeton University from going forward with its planned development of the Princeton Nurseries site.

His efforts moved the Planning Board to challenge this development, and eventually were a factor in the University's decision to withdraw and restudy its plan.

Mr. Sayen developed an open space inventory for the Township, and urged the Planning Board to target those areas for preservation, or at least for clustering.

The Friends of Princeton Open Space, which Mr. Sayen helped found, recently dedicated a one-mile hiking path in the Mountain Lakes Nature Preserve in his honor. This was especially fitting in view of his longtime concern for the preservation of the Mountain Lakes tract and with the networking of that tract with other open space areas already owned by the Township or marked for preservation or clustering.

To honor Mr. Sayen, Council President Marvin Reed asked for a moment of silence at a public meeting Monday night. Mr. Reed said that Princeton was more than Mr. Sayen's home. "It was his life. Everything the community meant was vital to him."

Township Mayor Kate Litvack said that it was important that Mr. Sayen be remembered not only for the things he did for Princeton, but even more for the things he did for Mercer County. As a member for many years of the Mercer County Park Commission, she said, he left a legacy of a park system that meets the needs of everyone, "a legacy few of us will leave."

Council of Community Services Seeks Funding For New Initiatives, Independent of United Way

The Princeton Area Council of Community Services expects to undertake several new initiatives for the coming year, and it has set a goal of raising $20,000, partly by re-instituting membership fees.

The Council is also looking for a new executive director, following the resignation of Joanne Adams. Mrs. Adams, who has held the post for three years, has resigned to become coordinator of a community service program involving Lawrenceville School students. Her husband is a member of the faculty and a house master at the school. Mrs. Adams had been assistant director of the Council of Community Services for a short period, when she assumed the top position vacated by Linda Eckhardt.

A dues requirement for membership in the Council was discontinued in 1964 when the Council was designated the planning arm of the United Way and began receiving funds as a member of the United Way. For 20 years, this support has been the sole source of funding for the Council.

Last year, an in-depth study of the United Way raised questions about the future relationship of the Council to the United Way. Specifically, the study by the Management and Communities Studies Institute (MACSI) of the United Way of America recommended incorporating the Council into a "full service" United Way. Several different ways of reorganization were proposed.

Separate and Independent. Disagreeing with the recommendation that it become incorporated into the United Way, the Council board of directors voted last winter to remain a separate and independent organization "with responsibility for community planning and community problem-solving ... in the area served by the Council and the United Way." The issue of incorporation, and other far-reaching recommendations of the MACSI Committee have been turned over to a Strategic Management Committee, charged with implementing — or deciding not to implement — the recommendations from the MACSI report.

Meanwhile, according to the Council's most recent newsletter, Council Communicator, at its May meeting the Council of Community Services board decided that the Council "must diversify and expand its funding base if it is to continue to play a major role in identifying and responding to the needs" of the growing and changing communities within its area.

Accordingly, the board voted to re-establish a system of membership fees. Three categories of individual membership were set: $15 regular, $30 contributing, and $100 supporting. Membership will cost $100 for a for-profit organization of 25 people or less, and $200 for a company of 25 or more. Non-profit organizations will pay $25 in dues.

A mailing sent out to nearly 900 potential individual members in June netted close to $4,000, according to the Rev. Floyd Churn, president of the board. A second mailing to corporations and executives is being sent out now, along with a new brochure describing the Council, its purpose, history and program.

Other Sources. In addition to re-instituting a membership structure, the Council expects to receive additional revenue from the sale of publications, such as its Directory of Community Services and its Child Care Directory. A fundraising activity is also planned, with a committee already named to organize it.

According to Mr. Floyd, the Council is also appealing the reduction of about $6,000 in its allocation request to the United Way for 1988-89. The Council would like to hire a student intern to free up the time of the director and assistant director from more routine activities. The hearing on the appeal will take place in August.

TOPICS Of the Town

The Council has listed some 15 new initiatives which it would like to undertake in the coming year. Research into community needs and changing demographics has always been an activity of the Council. In 1989 it would like to conduct a survey of the salaries and benefits of child care workers in the greater Mercer County area as well as to prepare a report on transportation needs and resources.

In terms of public education and information, another program thrust, the Council would like to develop a brochure on types of services available to the elderly; a quarterly newsletter of support information for family caregivers; and a calendar of area health education programs.

AIDS Education Workshop. It would like to sponsor a forum on child care for area corporations and sponsor an AIDS education workshop. In terms of program development, the Council wants to organize a program for voluntarism, particularly involving area corporations. It also wants to help area youth committees initiate youth programs and activities.

Sponsoring a management seminar series for non-profit volunteers and staff is another initiative proposed for the coming year.

As Mr. Churn puts it, "In a year with a lot of unknowns" — the future relationship with the United Way — "the Council has entered a whole new arena of developing sources of funding. And it has set itself a strikingly large number of new initiatives and undertakings.

"Despite the uncertainties, we are trying not to just pull back and hope things will work out. We are going forward."

Board Reversal Asked In Rooming House Case

Gordon Strauss, attorney for Sanford Zeitler, owner of a rooming house at 240 John Street, has filed an appeal in Municipal Court asking reversal of the Borough Zoning Board decision to revert the property back to single-family use. The complaint called the Board's decision arbitrary and capricious.

The Zoning Board ruled this spring that the ten-room house, which has two shared bathrooms but no kitchen, must revert back to its permitted use, that of a single-family dwelling. It refused to grant a variance to Mr. Zeitler for use as a rooming house.

The property, which faces Clay Street, was cited for 55 violations in November, 1987. All but two were corrected by the time of the Zoning Board hearing in April. However, in March, Mr. Zeitler was summoned to Municipal Court by the Health Department because a number of violations discovered in November had not yet been addressed.

Zoning Officer Frank Slimak said he did not believe anything had been done by Mr. Zeitler to help tenants relocate. "But I believe some took the initiative and moved out," he said.

Test Results Awaited On Contaminated Soil

Test results on soil at the corner of Witherspoon and Henry are being awaited. This soil was found to be contaminated above permissible limits when five underground storage tanks were excavated and removed in late June. The tanks had holes in them.

The site, a former gas station, had recently been used by its owner, The Princeton Packet, to supply gasoline to its company-owned vehicles. However, with the Packet planning to move its printing operations to South Brunswick, there will no longer be the need to store gasoline and oil there.

The further tests will show the extent of soil contamination. The environmental danger is still being evaluated, said Ted Cashel, fire officer for Princeton Township. He added that there was no direct evidence of damage to the aquifer, and that "there is not danger we are aware of, and none reported."

Thick plastic covering has been placed over the dirt mound to prevent water from washing out any contaminants, and also to prevent dirt from being spread around. Mr. Kassel noted that the area is composed of hard shale, which could help keep contamination from spreading.

Borough: "No" to Signs

Borough Council has decided not to put up "Drug-Free School Zone" signs within the municipality. These signs are designed to be posted at sites 1000 feet from schools.

Before rejecting Police Captain Thomas Michaud's request for the signs, Council asked him whether the absence of these signs would make any difference in the way Borough police pursued drug sellers. He said it would make no difference.

Having determined this, Council members asked Borough Attorney Michael Herbert whether someone apprehended for drug selling close to a school could claim lack of forewarning if no signs were posted. Mr. Herbert said this would not be a problem.

"As far as we were concerned, all of Princeton Borough should be a drug-free zone," said Council President Marvin Reed. "To put up signs would imply that it was easier to sell drugs outside the zone than inside."

Approval Is Delayed On Squibb Application

The Plainsboro Township Planning Board has put a hold on a conceptual design for Squibb Corporation's proposed United States headquarters at Forrestal Center. The Board, at a meeting Monday night, questioned the impact the proposed $215 million complex would have on the surrounding environment. Members were particularly concerned about its effect on the site's 106 acres of woodlands.

Because of these concerns about the environment, the Board agreed to re-examine the conceptual design later this month. Before this next review, Board members will also review the complex's overall layout, as well as its possible effect on local traffic.

The Board praised Squibb and its architects for the complex's "sensitive" integration into the area. Plainsboro Mayor Peter A. Cantu said, "It's very sensitive to the environment and to the community."

The Rev. Michael Nabors of First Baptist Church will speak at the candlelight ceremony. Also on the program are Jim Firestone of Princeton and Abraham Apple of Lawrenceville, along with poet Phil Sosis and musicians Megan Valentine and Linda Phillips. People are invited to bring a picnic to enjoy along with the music and speeches.

As darkness falls, children will set candles afloat on Lake Carnegie. The ceremony is modeled on Hiroshima Day observances held in Japan, where candles are lighted in memory of those who died. The event also symbolizes hope for a world free of nuclear weapons.

The East Windsor vigil, to be held from noon to 1, will be at Old Trenton Road just north of Princeton-Hightstown Road, site of GE's Astro-Space Division headquarters. According to CND organizer JoAnne Osborn, GE/RCA, the nation's second largest weapons producer, is involved in every area of the preparation for nuclear war. GE/RCA plants in central and south New Jersey are working on the Tomahawk cruise missile, the Trident submarine, and Star Wars, Ms. Osborn says.

The vigil is intended to "bring home to people that right in their back yards GE/RCA, which we think of as a consumer-oriented company, is making preparations for nuclear war," she added. "We want to support peaceful — not nuclear contracts — at GE."

Radio station WPRB is participating in the Hiroshima/Nagasaki commemoration with a special version of "Music You Can't Hear on the Radio." Host Jon Weingart is devoting his folk music show on Sunday to songs about peace and war. The show is heard from 6:30 to 10 on Sunday evenings.

$2,800 Recorder Stolen; Owned by Sewer Agency

A video cassette recorder valued at $2,800 and owned by the Princeton Sewer Operating Committee, has been stolen.

According to Lt. Mario Musso, someone entered the main building at the River Road treatment plant without force and then cut a padlock on a rear door of a truck which contained the recorder. Nothing else in the truck was taken and nothing else was disturbed in the building, he said. The theft was discovered Monday morning.

Borough police report two campus thefts. A 35mm camera worth $350 was stolen from a locked room in 1901 Hall on the University campus — police identified the victim as a resident of East Brunswick and a student at the University of Michigan — and a mini cassette recorder valued at $67 was taken last month from a desk drawer in a locked room in Ithaca Hall on the Westminster Choir College campus. The victim is a summer student from Seaville.

Township police also report an attempted burglary last month at a home on Wheatsheaf Lane where a rear door screen and a second screen on the side of the house had been cut. No entry was gained, police said.

Route 206 Lane Closings

The State Department of Transportation will close lanes on Route 206 between Valley Road and Cherry Valley Road, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. from Monday, August 8, through Friday, August 12.

$13,000 in Jewelry Gone; Movers Suspects in Theft

The investigation into the theft Monday of jewelry valued at $13,000 from a home in the Stanworth area while the owner was in the process of moving, is being continued by Borough Det. Ralph Terracciano.

According to Chief Michael Carnevale, the victim and a number of employees from the moving company had been moving furniture and boxes into the moving van. The jewelry, including a diamond ring, wedding band, earrings and pocket watch, had been placed in a packing carton but not sealed.

The victim had not finished packing, Chief Carnevale said, and when she returned to the room where the box was, she learned the carton had been sealed and placed in the van. The theft was discovered when the box was returned to the house.

"The focus of the investigation is on the moving crew," said Chief Carnevale.

Wallet Is Stolen. Sometime during a four-hour period last month, while a Palmer Square shop owner had left her purse unattended under a cash register, someone removed its wallet containing $200. The wallet, never recovered, was valued at $50. Police declined to identify the shop.

In another wallet theft, Township police report a wallet was taken overnight during the weekend from the dashboard of an unlocked VW van parked in a private drive on Lake Drive. The wallet contained $35 and a check. Police add that the interior of the van had been ransacked but nothing else was taken.

Township to Require Developers to Prove They Have an Adequate Supply of Water

Township Committee unanimously defeated a development application moratorium ordinance at its Monday night meeting. The ordinance, which was passed by Borough Council last week, had been introduced in response to the recent water crisis.

Committee rejected the ordinance in favor of a recently adopted resolution that would require developers to prove that there was adequate water for the development.

When the ordinance was introduced in June, water pressure was very low in the Borough central business district. It was also low in the Township at the Russell Estates development and Hun Road. Elizabethtown Water Company acknowledged the problems and has begun some steps to remedy the situation. Recent rains and water rationing have reduced the threat to health and safety.

In the public hearing preceding the vote, attorneys for several area developers spoke against the ordinance. Attorney Thomas Jamieson, representing both DKM, which plans to develop 110 acres on Pretty Brook Road, and developers Ben and Charles Yedlin, urged defeat of the ordinance.

"Our clients agree to the requirement that developers prove that they have an adequate supply of water," he said. He argued that the ordinance doesn't do much to address the problem since the time lag between the development application and the building permit is often as long as two years. "Filing an application does not absorb water, just blood, sweat and tears," he said.

Calton Homes attorney Thomas J. Hall supported "case by case consideration where developers have to prove that there is an adequate water supply." He was concerned about further delays on the controversial Calton Homes development on the White Farm tract.

New Process. Township engineer Robert V. Kiser described the process developers will now face under the resolution the committee members had adopted and now favor over the moratorium.

"First, we would have an independent consultant look at the water mains serving the development to see if the water supply is adequate," said Mr. Kiser. This would be paid for out of fees from the developer.

The process would continue with the consultant's recommendation being reviewed and passed upon by the fire department and the municipal engineer. Finally, once a developer received approval, the actual flows would be checked.

"We never monitored this way before," commented Mayor Litvack. "People in Russell Estates probably wish we had."

Other Business. Township Committee continued to address the water situation in other business Monday night. The Committee unanimously approved funds for an outside consulting engineer to provide expert testimony about the water situation in Princeton at the Board of Public Utilities (BPU) rate increase hearings.

Committee approved half of the funds to hire the engineering firm Metcalf and Eddy anticipating a 50/50 split with the Borough. The engineers have been asked to review Township and Borough maps and water company information and to prepare and present testimony before the BPU. In a final phase, the engineers will develop minimum fire flow standards that must be met by developers and the water company, based on accepted standards.

In other business, Committee approved a Transportation Trust Fund application. The Township will apply for State funds for major road repairs on the Township portions of Mercer Road, Alexander, and North Harrison and Ewing.

Priority treatment will be requested for Mercer Road because of its high traffic volume. Mr. Kiser reported that recent patches on the roadway will not last long because of a poor road bed, bad drainage and heavy traffic. The Township received $150,000 two years ago for improvements at the Harrison Street and Valley Road intersection.

A three-month completion extension was granted for the final surfacing of Poor Farm Road between Mt. Lucas and Bunn Drive. Drivers will continue to face occasional road flooding while the developer, Thompson Land, and PSE&G resolve problems with utility lines.

Police Charge Two Men With Drug Possession

Two men sitting in a car parked on South Tulane Street Friday have each been charged by Borough police with possession of less than 50 grams of marijuana.

While on assignment in the area, Det. Ralph Terracciano noticed a VW convertible with California plates parked on Tulane and observed its two occupants looking in all directions before focusing their attention on the driver's lap. As the officer approached the car, he saw the occupants had marijuana in their possession and were about to smoke a reefer.

Arrested and charged were Thomas Betts, 25, of Aldgate Court, and Terry Puni, 31, of East Brunswick. Betts was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia (a smoking pipe). Both were later released with summonses calling for their appearance August 17 in Borough court.

Teenagers Charged. The same day, shortly after 9 in the evening, two Princeton University proctors saw two teenagers enter Patton Hall on the campus. Investigating, they apprehended the youths, after they observed them rifling through drawers and suitcases in a room.

The youths, both 15, one a resident of Rocky Hill, the other from Skillman, were taken into custody, charged with burglary and turned over to Borough Juvenile Officer Det. Dennis McManimon for processing.

Police report that the dorm the suspects had entered was being occupied by a group of inner-city youths attending a summer camp at the University.

Pedestrian Is Pinched While Walking in Town

In what police are describing as an act of sexual contact, a 45-year-old West Windsor resident was pinched on the buttocks while walking late Sunday morning on Nassau Street in front of the Country Mouse store.

The victim told police that after coming up behind her and pinching her, the suspect then ran down an alleyway next to the store. Called to the scene, police searched the area without success.

The suspect is described as a white male in his late 20s, about 5-8, with reddish hair. He was wearing white shorts and a short-sleeved, powder-blue shirt.

Open Lewdness. In a case of open lewdness, a 42-year-old Lawrenceville resident told Township police that as she was driving on Winant Road at 6:30 Thursday evening, a young man exposed his genitals to her. She described him as a slightly-built, white mate with brown hair whose age she estimated at 14.

Police said the victim was the parent of a child attending a day camp in the area. While Ptl. Robert Toole was in the area investigating, two young girls, about 8 years old, told the officer that earlier in the day they had seen the same suspect exposing himself as they were walking down Winant Road.

Car Strikes Guard Rail In Faculty Road Mishap

A Pine Street resident was injured last week when he lost control of his car while rounding a curve on Faculty Road and struck a guard rail.

The driver, Marid A. Cornejo, 25, was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of an incapacitating neck injury. According to police, his 1985 sedan, after going out of control some 150 yards west of Washington Road, jumped a curb, slid around 180 degrees and struck a guard rail, damaging 15 feet of rail.

The investigation revealed the car's left front tire was flat but police do not know the cause because that tire did not strike anything. There were no witnesses to the accident, which occurred at 9:40 last Wednesday evening.

Ptl. David Cromwell, the investigating officer, issued no

Car Window Broken. A resident of Whiting, who had parked his 1981 Ford on John Street near Birch Avenue Sunday night, returned two hours later — at 9:30 — to discover the rear window had been smashed by a rock.

Police said nothing was taken from the car. Damage was estimated at $150.

Six Speeders Are Fined In Borough Court Monday

Six Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough traffic court for speeding.

Fined $70 each were Diane C. Unruh, 8 Merritt Lane, Rocky Hill; Carole Y. Hsu, 9 Staats Drive, Belle Mead; Neill P. Seltzer, 856 Old Great Road, and Eli Dimeff, P.O. Box 1509, Princeton. Paying $60 each were James L. Occi, 3H Magie Apartments, Faculty Road, and Alice J. Miller, 2 Towpath Court.

Four were fined for red light violations. Gilbert Derry, 218 Forrestal Road, paid $75, while Stephen F. Jusick, 16 Van Kirk Road, Baher A. Azmy, 274 Nassau Street, and Tyler L. Holmes, 98 Spruce Street, each paid $60. Mr. Holmes was fined an additional $25 for contempt of court.

Two paid multiple fines. Terrance L. Thomas, 33 Greenbrier Row, was fined $60 for use of license plates other than issued, $20 for unregistered vehicle and $20 for late inspection. Fined $60 each for moving violations were Kennedy A. Herbert, 22 Red Oak Row, wrong way on one-way street; Charles F. King, 28B Hawthorne, failure to give proper signal; and Susan Cook, 4 Mark Cermele Court, Lawrenceville, failure to turn as indicated by markers. James P. Seman, 7 Greenhotm Circle, paid $75 for improper entering or leaving a highway.

Others: Steven M. Richard, 20 Sunset Road, Lawrenceville, $30, overdue inspection; Samuel B. Schultz Jr., 31 Poe Road, $20, obstructing passage of other vehicles; and Peggy C. Robinson, 303 Emmons Drive, $20, lending or using plates on another vehicle.

Township Court. In Township court last week, Michelino Sferra, 190 Orchard Road, Skillman, was fined $85 on one charge of speeding and $65 on a second speeding violation.

In criminal court, Cindy Banks of Trenton, charged with two counts of shoplifting here (later merged into one), was fined $275 and $30 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board. She was also sentenced to 60 days in the Mercer County Detention Center concurrent with her parole violation.

Judge Sydney Souter stayed the fine and costs pending Ms. Banks' release and granted her 30 days thereafter to find a job. Payments on the fine, he ruled, must not be less than $25 a month.

NJT's On-Time Record Hits a Five-Year Low

New Jersey Transit commuters are experiencing a difficult commute this summer as the on-time performance of commuter trains is the worst it has been in five years.

According to reports, 81.4 percent of the trains in the system were on time in June. On the busy Northeast Corridor lines that serve Princeton Junction, more than a quarter of the trains were late.

A train is "on-time" if it reaches its destination within five minutes of the scheduled time.

Preliminary figures show further declines in service for July, with a 79 percent on-time record system-wide.

The strain of poor service is affecting Princeton Junction commuters. One commuter described a day that began and ended with 2¼ hour commutes that should have taken only 1½ hours. When he reached the Junction at midnight there was a 45 minute wait for the last Dinky and no cabs were available.

The system-wide delays have been blamed on track work on the Raritan Valley line. Also to blame is the weather, with a record-breaking heat wave and powerful thunderstorms, and Amtrak, which shares tracks on the Northeast Corridor lines.

Scholarships to Benefit From YM Swim-A-Long

The Princeton Family YMCA will conduct a Swim-A-Long on Friday to raise funds for scholarships and equipment for Day Camp, Child Care, Youth Sports and Youth Aquatic programs. Proceeds will also be used for membership scholarships for area youth and families.

YMCA Executive Director, Mike McElhaney notes, "The staff, members, and volunteers of the YMCA have really rallied to support this event. We've set a goal of $6,000 and judging by the enthusiasm generated so far, we should have no problem meeting it."

More than 100 children and adults have set target goals for the number of laps they'll swim and dollars they'll raise. They then recruit people to sponsor them for each lap.

Those interested in becoming involved as a sponsor or swimmer should contact the YMCA Member Office at 497-YMCA.

Beware Fad Diets!

Fad diets are characterized primarily by a daily food intake that fails to meet the body's nutritional needs. Many times their food lists come from only one food group, at the exclusion of the others. Fad diets also produce excessive weight loss that is constituted mostly of water.

At Diet Center, we recommend that you examine your current diet program, or any program you may be considering, by asking the following questions. Does the diet meet all of the body's nutritional needs? Is it made up of fresh foods available at the local grocery? Does it provide an adequate volume and variety of familiar foods? If the answer to any of these questions is no, you may be looking at a fad, or at least questionable, program.

Merchant Decries Influx Of Chain Stores in Town

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Approximately two months ago, I sent a letter to Mayor Barbara B. Sigmund and each member of the Borough Council pertaining to the continuing influx of chain stores in downtown Princeton — blurring even further the differentiation between our town and the regular shopping malls popping up all around us which we so vehemently regret.

Despite repeated calls to the Mayor's office, I have yet to hear any response from her or any Borough Council member. Therefore, I thought that I would share my original letter with you and your readers:

Recently, the Borough of Princeton passed an ordinance prohibiting any bank from establishing any additional offices on the first floor of any building in the Central Business District on Nassau Street. Although I am usually very wary of any legislation that prohibits any business from freely practicing its trade, I must agree that the main purpose of the ordinance was sound: to protect and encourage the growth of the highly regarded retail establishments presently located here in order to maintain the character of downtown Princeton for which it has become so famous.

There is, however, another problem which I believe is going to be a much bigger threat to the uniqueness of the retail business downtown. I am referring to the very rapid increase in the number of chain stores in the Central Business District. Over the past three years, the growth of chain stores in downtown Princeton has made the addition of new banks in the same area appear miniscule. Virtually every local retail business that has closed its doors or lost its lease has been replaced by multimillion dollar corporations with absolutely no ties to our community other than profit.

On a recent walk through town, I counted at least nine major corporate chains that have opened in downtown Princeton in the past three years. There are many more on the way. The near future opening of a CVS Pharmacy, a Gap Clothing Store, a Church Shoe Store and a J & R Music World (to name a few) will add to this dilemma. There is no doubt that the expansion of Palmer Square will bring even more chain stores into the area.

I have absolutely nothing against any individual chain store operating in downtown Princeton. I am, however, very concerned about the unchecked and continued growth of chain stores in our community. As a longtime resident of the area, it is the uniqueness of downtown Princeton which makes it so special to its citizens and those who visit us from many miles around. Continued and unrestrained growth of large corporate chain stores could make downtown Princeton indistinguishable from any other large downtown business district or shopping mall. At best, we will become a clone of nearby Forrestal Village.

Absentee Owners. Can anyooe honestly contend that the owners of a major chain store operation, usually located hundreds or even thousands of miles away, are concerned about such things as the welfare of our kids, local charities, or the strength of our public library? I believe that most local merchants are very concerned about such issues.

There should not be, of course, a ban on chain stores in Princeton. Area residents deserve to shop wherever they choose. However, it should be the citizens of our area, and not just the high retail rents, that help decide which stores should open on Nassau Street and the immediate surrounding area.

It is my proposal that the Borough establish a committee of local business and civic leaders to review the application of any major retail establishment desiring to do business in downtown Princeton. The number of stores a company owns and/or its net worth could be the deciding factor(s) in what constitutes a major chain.

Before being permitted to operate a chain store in Princeton, the chain store should demonstrate that it will be a benefit to the future well-being of Princeton and not simply a conduit established to pass profits to a company office in a distant city. Not only should the Borough be concerned that such stores will operate in a proper business manner, but more importantly that such stores will be concerned and assist with such challenging local issues as parking, crime and litter.

In addition, any new chain store should be conducive to preserving the present character and atmosphere of downtown Princeton. Area residents and merchants should be permitted the opportunity to address the committee on concerns they may have about a new chain store proposed for downtown.

The banking ordinance could be a step in the right direction to preserving the character of downtown Princeton. However, I think almost any Princeton resident would prefer a downtown known for its proliferation of financial institutions rather than a conglomerate of fast food restaurants and clone-like retail stores. After all, if it came down to a choice between two undesirables, would you prefer that your town be known as "little Wall Street" or "little mall street"?

Terhune Road Residents Protest High Speed Limit

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We, the residents of Terhune Road, are pleased to see the recent letters in the TOWN TOPICS favoring a 25 mph speed limit on residential through streets. For many years we have tried unsuccessfully to have our 35 mph speed limit reduced.

On July 25 a petition signed by 72 residents, requesting a 25 mph speed limit in the heavily residential section of Terhune, was presented to Township Committee. Several officials spoke against lowering the speed limit to 25 mph. We as residents find this frustrating because these people do not live here 24 hours a day, and therefore do not have to deal with the unsafe conditions that exist on Terhune Road.

Residents must enter and exit their driveways many times during the day. For some this is extremely hazardous because of the blind spots created by the dips and hills of Terhune. It is not uncommon to be halfway out of your driveway and have a car driving 50 mph force you back into your driveway. Many young children must cross Terhune to walk to school. Some children must walk in the street because there are no sidewalks.

We agree with the points made by T. Benham Dodd-Stockington, who based his opinion on 26 years experience in traffic engineering. He states that Princeton's basic problem is that it permits through traffic to use local residential streets. By posting higher speed limits on residential streets, you are merely inviting still heavier through traffic on local internal roads.

We need a 25 mph speed limit on Terhune to reduce speed and to warn drivers that they are in a residential area. Our elected officials have a responsibility to protect the residential neighborhoods they serve.

The above letter was signed by 43 Terhune Road residents.

Issue Is Quality of Life In Speed Limit Dispute

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am replying to a letter by Arch C. Davis III in which he suggests that we raise the speed limit on Elm Road to 35 miles an hour.

The issue, my dear Mr. Davis, is quality of life in Princeton. I do not think that we should turn our streets into speedways so that people can get through Princeton more quickly on their way to somewhere or other.

If Elm Road has a speed limit of 25 miles an hour, most people will probably not exceed 35 miles an hour. If the speed limit is raised to 35, most people will probably do 45 or perhaps more. I have already had three pets killed on Elm Road despite my best efforts to protect them.

It is fortunate that, to the best of my knowledge, no children have yet been killed on Elm road. This is a purely residential neighborhood with nothing but houses on all sides, and I do not think we need to speed people through it so that they can save perhaps 30 seconds or a minute in getting through Princeton.

As I said, the issue is quality of life and I think you are sadly mistaken in your letter.

Special Olympic Games Were Community Affair

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The New Jersey Special Olympic Summer Games brought its own brand of Olympic spirit to Princeton in late June, and it is a spirit that those of us on campus will cherish for a very long time.

In addition to thanking those members of our own staff — the conference office, food services, the department of public safety, the athletics department, building services and maintenance staffs — who worked so hard to prepare for the Special Olympic Games, we want to express our gratitude to those individuals, organizations and corporations in the Princeton community whose support and enthusiasm made this event such a success.

Together — town and gown — we turned an Olympic dream into reality for many special athletes. In doing so we enriched ourselves and our community. The courage, the commitment and the dignity of the Olympians endure, even though the athletes themselves have gone home.

On behalf of Princeton University, we thank all who were involved in this effort. We could not have done it without you!

History Is Unearthed by Morven Archaeological Dig

The front yard is ripped up. Piles of dirt and wheelbarrows litter the walks. There are holes in the walls of the house, and the rooms are empty. August is the perfect time to visit Morven, the old governor's mansion that is now a State museum.

Uninviting as the condition of the house sounds, the next few weeks will be the best time to visit Morven until next summer. The mess is not part of a "pardon our appearance while we remodel" phase, but a carefully staged archaeological dig and architectural survey. When school begins in September, many of the archaeological volunteers will return to graduate schools, colleges and high schools, and the pace of the project will slow down until next summer.

Every Wednesday from 10 to 2 and Saturday from 10 to 1, tours of the archaeological dig on the grounds and of the nearly empty house are open to the public. Individuals can park by entering the second gate and join a tour by checking in with the guards inside the first front entrance. The visit takes about an hour. While many area people have visited Morven for various functions over the years, the tours provide a new perspective on the house and on historic preservation in general.

The archaeological dig grew out of a request by the regional Garden Club of America to recreate the 18th-century gardens of Richard and Annis Stockton, who built Morven. The State, which was deeded Morven as a museum or governor's residence, was in the process of developing Morven as a museum, since Drumthwacket had become the official residence.

In an effort to define the mission for the house and gardens, a three-pronged research program was developed. A documentary history would collect and study all documents relating to the house. An historic structures study would date and define the house and its additions and assess their structural integrity. Finally, an archaeological program would investigate evidence of the past hidden on the grounds of Morven.

EXPLAINING THE PAST: Archaeological tours of Morven are held Wednesdays and Saturdays. Archaeologist Rebecca Yamin explains some of the latest findings to a recent group of visitors.

Eventually a decision will be made about how the grounds should look, and the house will be filled with appropriate furnishings and changing exhibits. Now the attraction is the research — particularly the archaeological dig and the questions it raises about the past and what the future of the property should be.

Clues to the Past. On a recent Wednesday morning, archaeologist Rebecca Yamin, assistant curator for interpretation, communicated the enthusiasm surrounding the dig to a historical society group from upstate New York as she led them on a tour of the property. While she spoke, student workers were digging thin layers of dirt from a square of ground and sifting the dirt through a screen in search of clues to the past.

She described the intricate mysteries revealed through the landscape. A search for a "chestnut walk," the path lined with chestnut trees that is described in 18th-century references, brought disappointments when one layer revealed only 19th-century evidence. By digging deeper, 18th-century rubble from the walk was revealed, as well as startling evidence that there may have been an eastern part of the house that is not documented.

The mysteries of the landscape and the house read like a good detective story, filled with interesting characters. The house was built circa 1758 by Richard Stockton, signer of the Declaration of Independence and host to the leading political figures of the day, including George Washington.

Richard Stockton's son, a senator, inherited the home, and passed it along to the most interesting head of the Morven household, Commodore Robert Field Stockton. The Commodore seems to have played a leading role in every important early- to mid-19th-century American event, from sponsorship of New Jersey's canals and railroads, to the conquest of California.

Restorations Interfere. A quieter, less wealthy, arm of the Stockton family farmed Morven until Helen Hamilton Shields Stockton tried to restore its past glories in the late 19th century. Her restorations have proved bothersome to today's archaeologists, as she obliterated and obscured evidence of the past with her projects.

More recently, Robert Wood Johnson, son of the founder of Johnson & Johnson, rented the property for 20 years, adding tennis courts, a pool and an Art Deco pool house during the 1930's. The final residents, best remembered by townspeople, were the succession of New Jersey governors and their large families.

The archaeological tour ends in a room of the house where artifacts from the dig are displayed. A collection of toy soldiers has been assembled from the toys lost by generations of children. Uniforms reflect the wars of the era; the Civil War, World Wars and Vietnam are all represented. Pipe stems, jars, bits of plates and glass help document the lifestyles of Morven residents. A piece of 18th-century glass signed with the original owner's maiden name, Boudinot, speaks clearly from a distant past.

The dilemma facing Morven today is one of focus. Dr. Yamen stood in a spot towards the center of Morven's back garden. On one side of this spot is an excavation revealing evidence of 18th-century terraced gardens. On another is a 19th-century Colonial revival wall and a stand of 100-year-old hemlocks. At the back of the garden is the luxurious 1930's pool house. Off the side of the house is a 25-year-old fire escape leading from the bedrooms of governors' children. Finally, on all sides, is the present late 20th-century research project, the current sign of the times.

Which era do you pick? Do you obliterate 100-year-old history in the pursuit of recreating a 200-year-old past? The ability of generations of affluent residents to express themselves in their use of the landscape has created an interesting dilemma.

Where the State museum will go with the landscape will be a difficult decision, and the options are being unearthed this summer and next. Visitors can share in the discoveries and draw their own conclusions.

Pullman Co. Accepts Buy-Out Bid of $650M

Pullman Co., headquartered at 182 Nassau Street, has accepted a $650 million buy-out bid by the investment firm Forstmann Little & Co. This ended an earlier plan for a take-over by a management-led group headed by Thomas Begel, chairman and CEO of Pullman, and Henley Manufacturing Corp, the largest stockholder.

Forstmann Little agreed Wednesday that it would pay $9.25 cash per share for Pullman's 41.9 million outstanding shares, or about $387.57 million. Assumption of existing debt and expenses will make the total price of the buyout about $650 million.

"I am pleased that Pullman's stockholders will get the benefit of the $9.25 transaction price," said Mr. Begel in a prepared statement. "(I) am confident that by being one of the Forstmann Little group of companies, new opportunities will be provided for Pullman's employees."

In Princeton, Pullman employs 50 people at headquarters. Worldwide the company employs 9,000 people at 70 facilities, mostly in the Midwest.

Pullman is a diversified manufacturer of industrial and engineered component products, including truck trailers, aircraft seating, food service equipment, weapons systems components, refuse disposal equipment and fluid handling systems. It no longer owns the rail car manufacturing plants started by company founder George M. Pullman.

The company's stock was the 12th most actively traded on the New York Stock Exchange last week, closing at $9 on Friday, up $1.37 for the week.

Princeton Rep Company's "Savage in Limbo" Tracks Five Characters in a Surreal Bronx Bar

"MUSIC HATH CHARMS": Mark (Albert Chini) brings out his music box to calm April White (Deborah Jeanne Culpin) in "Savage in Limbo," currently playing in Murray Theatre on the University campus.

The confined, subway-like atmosphere of a Bronx bar sets the tone for the encounters of five unmarried characters in their early 30s in Princeton Rep Company's current production of Savage in Limbo at Murray Theatre, but the material comprehends nothing less than the problem of escaping the traps of our lives and making meaningful connections with other people.

The 1985 drama by John Patrick Shanley, winner of an Academy Award for his screenplay for the movie Moonstruck, is at times poetic in its imagery and in the characters' intense expression of their longings, at times humorous in the behavior of the battling sexes, at times perhaps shocking in the harshness of the realistic, expletive-laden language, but consistently interesting in its examination of these five idiosyncratic human beings.

The ribaldry in language and occasionally in subject matter, as well as a curious element of surrealism that mixes with the realism, takes this show out of the mainstream as far as family entertainment is concerned, but Mr. Shanley's voice is one of talent and energy, and this bar in the Bronx offers a bizarre and fascinating picture of our human condition.

News of the THEATRES

The play is served well here by a strong cast, a superb set designed by John C. Schenck III, and the committed and intelligent direction of Victoria Liberatori, who treads a labyrinthine path through the strange inconsistencies of realism and unrealism in this play.

The title character, Denise Savage, played with tension-fraught energy and appeal by Donna Mehle, ignites the action with her arrival at the bar. She is "ready for action" and ready to break out of the trap she has been living in in her mother's house. Though the play leaves its audience, along with its main character, in limbo, never quite certain what any individual wants or needs, the sincerity and strength of Savage's desire for a new life are compelling.

Following Savage's entrance, Linda Rotunda, just jilted by her boyfriend, enters dramatically to take the table downstage, opposite the protagonist. Linda (played by Jessica Marlowe) is another character needing a change, but in almost all other ways she is the complete antithesis of Denise Savage. Where Savage is slim, cool, virginal and intellectual, Linda, in her tight-fitting white and black leopard-skin outfit, is curvaceous, hot, sensual and perpetually involved in a sexual relationship.

Different Plans. Both women need to break out of their parents' houses, but Savage's quest seems to be taking place on some spiritual plane, while Linda's goals are much more down-to-earth: to win back her boyfriend (who is the father of one of her children and of another on the way) and to marry him.

The third female character, upstage on a stool at the bar throughout the play and at times close to falling asleep or passing out, is the mentally precarious April White, convincingly portrayed by Deborah Jeanne Culpin. "I'm scared and you're scared," Linda remarks to Savage, "but she's f— beyond!" A disappointed would-be nun, April needs a steady supply of alcohol and periodic doses of "Christmas," complete with a visit from Santa Claus, a gift-wrapped music box and her own chorus of "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Providing April with her drinks, her personal Santa Claus, and enough emotional support to keep her under control and to win her assent to a proposal of marriage, is the dour, routine-obsessed bartender, Murk, played with some unease and awkwardness by Albert Chini. Though in the background behind the bar and often silent, Murk insists on enforcing the rules of the bar, but is saved from one-sidedness by his odd, protective attachment to April. This relationship and these characters, representing opposite extremes of chaos and order, emerge from another world, one less realistic than the world of Savage and Linda.

The fifth character, stepping directly into the focal point 20 minutes into the play, is Linda's unfaithful boyfriend, the local stud, Tony Aronica, effectively played by Michael Jarel. He too is seeking a new dimension in his life — something to do with an ugly girl who turns him on with her comprehensive knowledge of Russia! Tony also bravely vows to change his life, and, as the conflict heats up, he suddenly finds himself in the middle of the three women and their ambitious plans. Though, with his bright red leather pants and shoes and gold medallions on his chest, Tony at times seems more caricature than character, be injects a strong dose of humor and brings the play to a focus.

Worth Seeing. Despite some odd inconsistencies of tone and an occasional heavy hand in Savage's repeated pronouncements — which were interesting at first — about finding life, breaking out and releasing the animal within her, the characters are intriguing, and the show, less than 90 minutes long with no intermission, is well worth seeing.

The set is a masterpiece of symbolic and realistic interweavings, with steel girders, the large glass-block bar at center stage and a row of connected doors — signifying perhaps thresholds, closings of old lives and openings of new lives — to form the back wall.

Princeton Rep Company, dropping us into an even more alien realm here than the rural North Carolina setting of its recent Pump Boys and Dinettes, will present Savage in Limbo just one more weekend, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus. Phone 452-4950 for reservations and information.

'The Vindictive Chorister' At Murray-Dodge Theatre

The Vindictive Chorister, a comic parody of a church choir by Sylvia Fontyn-Elvin, will be given a staged reading this Wednesday at 8 in Murray-Dodge Theatre. The reading is the first in a series called Playlab, Princeton Rep Company's summer showing of work by new playwrights.

The Vindictive Chorister focuses on the choir and choirmasters of St. Valentine Blessed Martyr Church in Empressville. Ms. Fonteyn-Elvin will narrate the stories, assisted by director Victoria Liberatori. The actors include Pat Echeverria, Esther Jenkins, Carol Kehoe, Seth Klevans, Nelson Runger and Dick Swain.

The music will be sung by Marty Salkin, soprano; Betsy McKenzie, alto; George Bassett, tenor; and Steve Farris, bass. The singers will be accompanied by a chamber group, consisting of Robert Lohman, trumpet; Linda Tappin, clarinet; Ted McClure, cello; and Dick Swain, piano.

Tickets are $5. For ticket information call 452-4950.

$1 Million State Grant For McCarter Theatre

McCarter Theater will receive $1 million in State funds in the coming year through the New Jersey State Council on the Arts. The Council has also designated McCarter a "regional center of artistic excellence," one of four centers throughout the State to receive the designation.

The $1 million grant to McCarter was third highest in the State, surpassed only by a $2.2 million grant to the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and a $1.5 million grant to the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn. The Paper Mill Playhouse was designated a "State center of artistic excellence" by the State Council on the Arts, the only arts center to be so named.

Other recipients of State grants include Crossroads Theatre Company, $579,000; George Street Playhouse, $325,000; Princeton Ballet, $305,000; June Opera Festival, $194,000; Rutgers University Arts Services' Concert Series, $125,000; New Brunswick Cultural Center, also designated a "regional center of artistic excellence," $125,000; and the American Boychoir School, $110,000;

Also, Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission, $75,095; Westminster Choir College, $75,000; Passage Theatre Inc., $56,500; Princeton University Art Museum, $51,000; and Young Audiences, $50,000.

The $1 million grant to McCarter is the largest the theater has ever received from the State. It includes $600,000 for operating expenses and $400,000 as an "artistic focus" grant, which will enable the theater to form a resident acting company.

'Oklahoma' Scheduled At Open Air Theatre

Encore Theatre Productions of East Windsor will present the Rogers and Hammerstein musical Oklahoma! at the Open Air Theatre in Washington Crossing this weekend and next.

Oklahoma! contains favorite songs such as "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top," and the rousing title song.

Performances are this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:30, and Wednesday, August 10, through Saturday, August 13, also at 8:30. Tickets are $5.50 on Wednesday and Thursday, $6.50 Friday and Saturday. Children's tickets are half price. The box office opens at 4:30 on performance days.

For additional information call 737-1826.

Week's Films Are Listed For Kresge Auditorium

Summer Cinema continues in the air-conditioned Kresge Auditorium in the Frick Chemical building on Washington Road with two movies every night except Monday.

This weekend's double bill will feature The Last Metro at 7:15 and The Return of Martin Guerre at 9:30. Francois Truffaut's focus in The Lost Metro is on a small theater company trying to operate in German-occupied Paris during World War II. The actress-wife of the Jewish director of the Montmartre Theatre fixes up a secret apartment for her husband beneath the theater's stage.

There he listens to rehearsals and directs a new production by giving her notes during her nightly visits. The story focuses on how she copes with a new leading man who is involved in the resistance (Gerard Depardieu), as well as with the play itself, its cast and crew, her husband's constant peril, and the movie's villain, a censorious critic who is also a Nazi collaborator. Catherine Deneuve plays the actress-wife.

Gerard Depardieu also stars in the second movie, The Return of Martin Guerre, which tells the story of how, in the 1540's, a rich peasant in the village of Artigat leaves his wife, young son and property and disappears for eight years. Then he reappears — apparently — and lives happily as a loving husband, father and diligent worker, until he is accused of being an imposter.

An investigation begins, Martin is brought to trial and has the court almost convinced as to his identity when the "real" Martin Guerre turns up, and the "imposter" is hanged.

Tuesday through Thursday, August 9 through 11, Summer Cinema will present Andre Techine's Scene of the Crime at 7:30 and Brian de Palma's Body Double at 9. Scene of the Crime is a thriller about a 14-year old boy who is threatened by an escaped convict (who happens to be young and handsome).

The boy lives with his divorced mother, Lilli (Catherine Deneuve), who runs a country nightclub in provincial southwest France, and his maternal grandmother. The boy and his mother are devoted to each other, but the equation changes when she meets the convict, who is a criminal, and soon both mother and son are thrust into an unknown world of death, desperation and brutality.

The leading character in Body Double is a pleasant wimp who becomes fascinated and then sexually obsessed with Gloria (Debora Shelton), a faraway female figure he can only spy on on through a telescope. But his voyeuristic passion turns to fear when he discovers that another man is watching her too, but for different reasons: to murder her with a power drill. Jake's pursuit of answers involves him in the world of porno films and introduces him to Holly (Melanie Griffith), a porn actress who becomes the bizarre double of the dead Gloria.

Neil Simon's "Chapter Two" at Off-Broadstreet Mixes Humor, Poignancy and Sparkling Acting

Chapter Two, a 1977 comic drama full of the laughter and heartache involved in starting a new phase of life, opened at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre in Hopewell last Friday, with the strengths of Robert Thick's production coinciding with the strengths of Neil Simon's partly autobiographical script.

Set in the Central Park West apartment of the recently-widowed, 42-year-old writer George Schneider, and in the Upper East Side apartment of the 32-year-old, recently-divorced actress Jennie Malone, the four-character play contains a healthy dose of vintage Simon comic dialogue as well as many serious and poignant moments.

The highlight of this production is the sparkling Catherine Rowe as Jennie, consistently on target throughout the evening. She portrays the frazzled, apprehensive, over-scrutinizing young divorcee with power and charm. The repartee on the phone, then in person, between the at-first-reluctant, then ecstatically excited Jennie and the laid-back, bereaved George is some of the wittiest and sharpest Simon has ever written. Ms. Rowe and Rob Pherson (her real-life husband) as George deliver it with conviction, poignance and rich, warm humor.

The action moves swiftly and steadily in the first half of the play as scenes shift back and forth from his apartment to hers, and we wonder first if he will phone, then if they will meet, then what will happen when they do meet and then whether George will ever be able to get beyond the death of his first wife. Even as the post-marital tone of the play darkens a shade or two, Ms. Rowe's Jennie retains her strength and interest as she is compelled to speak up for herself and her new marriage in the later scenes of the play.

Mr. Pherson plays a laconic, slow-moving counterpart to Ms. Rowe, and creates a character of deep emotion and dry, sharp wit, as he sets the pace of the courtship and marriage dance in struggling with his intrusive memories of the past.

Meanwhile, in a subplot that interweaves with the serio-comic drama of George and Jennie, George's brother Leo first tries (unsuccessfully) to take charge of George's love life, then, upon the arrival of Jennie, tries (again unsuccessfully) to slow things down, and finally proceeds to have his own preposterous affair with Jennie's eccentric and unhappy best friend Faye.

Subplot Problems. Husband and wife team John and Mary Kemp as Leo and Faye have their moments, and the subplot has some fine comic possibilities, but unfortunately problems in script and performance weigh down this segment of the play. These characters are adequate in supporting roles, but inherently far less interesting and less funny than the protagonists.

"HAVE YOU DONE THIS A LOT?" asks a giggly Faye (Mary Kemp) while in the arms of Leo (John Kemp) the man she attempts to have an affair with. The Neil Simon comedy "Chapter Two" now playing at the Off-Broadstreet Dessert Theatre in Hopewell features Simon's one line jokes entwined in a love story based on his own life story.

The show, slowed significantly on opening night by Mr. Kemp's missed lines, seemed about 20 minutes too long, and Ms. Kemp, some effective character work notwithstanding, suffered a tendency to overplay. Both may be having difficulty making the transition to straight drama from their accustomed musical comedy roles.

Anthony M. Rizzo's elaborate set — George's apartment stage left and Jennie's apartment on a high platform stage right — is realistic and effective, though a bit too cramped, particularly on Jennie's side, to consistently allow optimum flow of movement.

Though this play might not be as funny as Simon's The Odd Couple or Barefoot in the Park, nor as powerful as the recent autobiographical trio of Brighton Beach, Biloxi Blues and Broadway Bound, the slow parts of this Chapter Two will unquestionably tighten up and the pace will quicken in coming performances. Jennie and George — with some help from Neil Simon, of course — make the evening a satisfying one.

Chapter Two will play at Off-Broadstreet on weekends through August 27, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m., with desserts served beginning one hour before curtain time. Phone 466-2766 for reservations and information.

MUSIC

American-Soviet Youth Concert Set for August 15

The 110-member American-Soviet Youth Orchestra will perform Monday, August 15, at 7 in the War Memorial Theatre in Trenton.

Tickets are on sale at Zeiger Enterprises, 625 Prospect Street, Trenton, 394-1000. Patron seats in the orchestra and loge are $50 and include a catered reception with the musicians. Tickets at $10 and $15 are also available.

Composed of 58 American and 52 Soviet musicians, all between the ages of 17 and 23, the orchestra is on a five-city concert tour of the United States, to be followed by a similar tour in the Soviet Union. Sponsors are the Oberlin, Ohio, Conservatory of Music, AFS Intercultural Programs, and the Soviet Ministry of Culture.

Leonid Nikolayev, music director of the Moscow Conservatory of Music Symphony Orchestra, and Larry Rachleff, Oberlin conductor and music director, will conduct the concert in Trenton. The program will include works by American composers Aaron Copland and Charles Ives; a new symphonic piece by Soviet composer Edison Denisov; an excerpt from Romeo and Juliet by Sergei Prokofiev; and Symphony No. 1 by Gustav Mahler.

The idea for a joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. youth orchestra originated in a luncheon discussion between Grace Kennan Warnecke, daughter of former United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union George F. Kennan of Hodge Road, and S. Frederick Starr, president of Oberlin College, a Russian scholar and jazz musician who has brought his Louisiana Repertory Jazz group to play at Princeton events.

In talking about glasnost, what it means and what could be done to illustrate the fact that things have changed in the Soviet Union, Mr. Starr suggested a joint American-Soviet youth orchestra. Mrs. Warnecke, a television producer who is fluent in Russian and has arranged United States-Soviet exchanges over lunch, was asked to do a feasibility study but soon became executive director as the project "took off."

Learning of Trenton businessman Shelley Zeiger's interest in furthering American-Soviet cultural exchanges, she contacted him to see if he would be interested in helping arrange a Trenton concert and obtaining support. Mr. Zeigler was enthusiastic and is planning to make the August 15 concert a fundraiser to help defray the $1 million the entire project is expected to cost. Mr. Zeigler launched the Trenton and Lenin District, Moscow, sister-city relationship and sent a 39-member Trenton Sister City Youth Orchestra to Moscow in April, 1987.

Members of the orchestra will stay in homes of area residents. In Princeton, Bob and Harriet Teweles and Jean Ross and John Womack have volunteered to host Soviet musicians. About 10 additional host families are needed, and area residents wishing to open their homes to the musicans may call Joseph Galati, president of the Trenton chapter of the American Field Service/AFS Intercultural programs.

More than 500 musicians competed for places in the orchestra. One of those chosen was flutist Adrienne Flynn of Flemington. Several students at the Curtiss Institute of Music in Philadelphia are also among the 58 American members.

The first concert will take place this Friday at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., to be conducted by Zubin Mehta, music director of the New York Philharmonic, who has also donated his services for four days of rehearsals beforehand.

Final Summer Chamber Concert Demonstrates Positive & Negative Aspects of Outdoor Setting

Although the heat and humidity tell us we are only in the middle of summer, the Princeton University Summer Chamber Concert Series drew to a close this past weekend by presenting a relatively new ensemble: the Shanghai Quartet, founded only five years ago.

This string quartet revels in dynamics, especially pianissimos so soft that the cicadas at the Graduate College seemed loud in comparison. The program of Haydn, Webern and Beethoven provided ample opportunity for this ensemble to show off its dynamic prowess.

Franz Joseph Haydn wrote the six quartets which comprise Opus 76 in 1796. They were published several years later, with a catalog description stating, "Nothing which our house has ever published equals this edition." The first quartet of this series, in G Major, is standard in format, yet intimate in sound. In opening the program with this work, the Shanghai Quartet demonstrated not only why their ensemble has attracted such a following in five short years but also why the Graduate College courtyard is such a suitable setting for these summer concerts.

The Shanghai Quartet makes its audience listen. The dynamic ranges achieved in the second movement "Adagio" of the Haydn drew absolute silence from the audience, as the players performed in a contained, yet classical style. The crisp melodies of all four movements sounded precise within the confines of the Graduate College walls, and the false cadence of the "Finale" was particularly effective.

Din of the Outdoors. The second work on the program, Anton Webern's Five Pieces, Opus 5, demonstrated some of the negative aspects of holding these concerts outdoors. In its attempts to present subtle, barely audible, yet intense playing, the Quartet inadvertently highlighted the distractions inherent in an outdoor concert: a plane flying overhead, someone in the shower. Parts of these Five Pieces, although played with the compactness and concentration required of Webern's works, could not be heard over the other noises.

However, it was clear from this performance that the Shanghai Quartet is compatible with the disjointed compositional style of Webern. As bits of melody passed from instrument to instrument, little ensemble clarity was lost and some interesting effects, such as the shimmering of the violins, were achieved.

Ludwig van Beethoven's String Quartet in C Sharp Minor, Opus 131, is an unusual quartet in its format — seven movements instead of the usual four — and in the fact that the movements are almost continuous. Although the high humidity of the evening forced the Quartet's instruments badly out of tune (compounded by the breaking of bow hairs on the first violinist's bow), the ensemble displayed some particularly fine contabile playing in the fourth movement and clever use of pizzicato.

The bowings chosen by the players also emphasized delicate fortes, more in keeping with the classical style, rather than the ferocious and violent playing one often associates with Beethoven.

There is currently a controversy over whether these summer chamber concerts should be moved indoors. The performance of the Shanghai Quartet supported both the positive and negative sides of this conflict. Although nothing beats the crisp sounds of Haydn under the stars in a Gothic setting, heat and humidity play havoc with instruments, and there tends to be much distraction from the other activities in the vicinity.

However, one thing which cannot be denied is the superlative quality of the ensembles presented this summer. Whether these concerts are held indoors or outdoors next summer, we can look forward to another series of top quality instrumentalists.

ART

Exhibits

Sheila Nussbaum Gallery, located in the Princeton Shopping Center, will present an exhibit of American craft and fine art jewelry through August 26.

Gallery artists will include Wesley Anderegg, Jeanne Emery, Sue Gould, Cathy Holt, Jennifer Inge, Larry Lubow, John Santerineross, Rosa Thummel, and Jan Wagstaff.

The Hopewell Frame Shop and Gallery, West Broad Street, is the area's authorized dealer for the 1988 New Jersey duck stamp and print. To commemorate the fifth anniversary of the duck stamp program in New Jersey, the State Department of Fish and Game commissioned Robert Leslie of Turnersville to design this year's duck stamp print.

Each year, two waterfowl stamps are issued; one with a $2.50 face value for residents and one with a $5 face value for nonresidents. State and Federal stamps are required for waterfowl hunting. The law requires anyone over the age of 16 to purchase a stamp in order to hunt. This program offers a way for hunters and nonhunters to contribute to conserving New Jersey's wildlife habitat.

Revenues from the sale of New Jersey duck stamps and prints along with added M.A.R.S.H. funds from Ducks Unlimited, were used to purchase a 583-acre marshland alongside the Delaware Bay in Cumberland County.

The artist was delighted to see that large flocks of Green-winged Teal were using this marsh well into the winter. This was the inspiration for his painting.

Works by Cynthia Nelissen-Nihart of Princeton and Gary Saretzky of Lawrenceville will be included in Mercer Medical Center's exhibition, "The Photographers," scheduled to open on Thursday, August 11, from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Medical Center Lobby, 446 Bellevue Avenue, Trenton.

The exhibit will be on display through September 23.

Post 76 — 'the Comeback Kids' — Do It One More Time And Stay Alive in the American Legion State Tournament

Princeton Post 76 has not run out of miracles.

Post 76 dug into its pocketful of comebacks Monday night and came up with another. It scored two runs in the bottom of the tenth to defeat Park Ridge, 7-6, after Ridge had scored the go-ahead run in the top of the tenth. Call them the Comeback Kids or the Cardiac Kids but also call them winners. The win over Park Ridge was No. 21 for the team.

"They just don't stop," agreed ecstatic Post 76 manager Larry Bender. "I never stopped believing." Indeed, Post 76's affinity for disaster has reached the point where veteran John Clarkson, who drove in the winning run with his third hit, observed: "I don't think we produce until our backs are against the wall."

Post 76 was scheduled to play in the finals of the losers' bracket earlier this week in its third tournament game in as many days. Two more wins and it will advance as one of the eight finalists who will converge on Beslin Field in Lyndhurst for the Legion State finals August 6-14. At the start of the week, Hamilton Post 31 and Bordentown Post 26 from Mercer County were among the teams still alive in the quarterfinals, which are being contested by 32 teams at four locations.

After Park Ridge had scored a single run off reliefer Scott Lord in the tenth to take a 6-5 lead, Princeton came right back. Dan Sexton's blooper to right was lost in the lights for a single — his third hit of the game. J.F. Glassmacher, who had a pinch-hit homer in Princeton's opening tournament loss to Berlin Vending, followed with a pinch single that placed runners on the corners.

A.J. Pietrinferno, batting for Post 76 slugging leader Tim Rumer, who had been ejected in the fifth inning for intentionally knocking over Park Ridge catcher Mike Bagley after he was out, tied the score when his hot smash to first could not be handled. Clarkson then found the hole between first and second for the game-winner.

Fourteen-year-old Peter Prodanov started for Post 76, his first appearance on the mound since July 16. He held Park Ridge scoreless through the first five innings but was pulled by Bender in the sixth when he was reached for two runs. Previously, Post 76 had built a 4-0 lead on some timely hitting (it had 14) and some agressive baserunning, its hallmark.

Princeton also added another run in the sixth for a 5-2 lead but Park Ridge fought back to tie it with three runs in the eighth, including a two-run homer by Bagley off reliefer Scott Lord. Lord, coming back with one day's rest, held on for the win, his eighth.

SPORTS

Before his ejection, Rumer (he had crashed into the PR catcher with his arms extended trying to score from first on a single) had two hits. In six post-season games, Rumer is 13-for-25 and has driven in 12 runs.

Opening Loss. After Princeton stumbled in its opening test in the Legion District Two playoffs when it was edged, 6-5, by Berlin Vending of Camden County, it needed to win four games in the next four days to become one of the eight finalists. Although the opening loss was a disappointment, the position of having to win to stay alive was not a new one for the team.

Post 76 began its comeback in typical fashion: rallying to defeat Iselin Post 471, 9-8, Sunday for its 20th win of the season. (Iselin had dropped a 7-6 decision to Scotch Plains in its tournament opener.) Once again, Bender had his team running. They combined nine stolen bases with 11 walks and only two hits to build a 6-1 lead after six innings. Three runs came home on errors and two more on wild pitches.

Iselin stunned Princeton, however, when it engineered a comeback of its own. Shaking off its early sloppy play, Iselin hit Princeton reliefer Mark Lee hard to score seven runs and take an 8-6 lead. Post 76 got one run back in the next inning to cut the margin to one and then won it with two runs in the eighth.

Tim O'Connell started the comeback with a walk, advanced on a Ryan Douglas single but, an out later, was thrown out trying to steal third. After Papciak walked to kept the rally alive, Andy Petrone lined a two-strike pitch to the opposite field, after fouling off four balls, to score Douglas with the tying run. "That was some at bat," said an admiring Bender.

The winning run came off a favorite tactic of Bender's — the first-and-third delayed steal. Disdainful of the two outs against his team, Bender flashed the steal sign that had Petrone break for second. Petrone "stumbled" by design, and got caught in a rundown, allowing Papciak to scamper home from third with the go-ahead run.

"We didn't get a lot of hits today (seven, including two each by Rumer and Sexton) but we were able to manufacture some runs," smiled Bender. "We ran well today."

Rumer came on in relief of Mark Lee in the ninth, after Lee had allowed a single that put the tying run on board. Rumer yielded another hit but Princeton escaped from the jam when Papciak threw out a runner trying to steal third and Rumer got second baseman Darin Nagy to fly out to right for the final out.

Lee, who pitched three innings, after relieving starter J.F. Glassmacher in the fifth, got the win, his third. He has appeared in 24 of Princeton's 32 games this season.

"Another good win," summed up Bender after the game. "These kids have been coming back all year."

One Run Short. Princeton Post 76 had dug a hole for itself and for the tournament on the previous day, when it fell behind Berlin Vending, the Camden Country League runnerup, in the tournament's opening round.

Actually, Post 76 managed to tie the game at one in the fourth when Peter Prodanov singled and then scored on Jim Brienza's single to right. Berlin (19-8) broke the tie the same inning with three runs. It added another in the fifth and one more in the seventh on a single by Dan Bartolomeo, stolen base, wild pitch and sacrifice fly.

The latter run proved to be the winning one because Post 76 erupted for one of its patented comebacks in the eighth. Trailing 6-2, Rumer led off with a shot over the right field fence, his ninth round-tripper and third in post-season play. An out later, Clarkson doubled and Glassmacher blasted a 1-0 pitch over the right center fence for a pinch-hit, two-run homer.

Princeton could score no more, however, and still trailed by one.

In the ninth, Sexton led off

Although there's never been a grandfather-father-son combination who've played major league baseball, that could change in a few years ... There's a second baseman now at the University of Southern California, Bret Boone, who could make the majors ... If he does he would be part of the first 3-generation family to play in the big leagues ... His father, Bob, has been a major league catcher since 1972, and his grandfather, Ray, was an infielder in the majors from 1948 to 1960.

What was the single most dramatic moment in baseball history? ... A panel of experts recently selected the last minute of a game played Oct. 3, 1951 ... It was the final playoff game for the National League pennant between the Giants and Dodgers ... with a walk to put the tying run on base but he was erased at second on a sacrifice attempt by Lee. That brought Rumer up to the plate again but this time there was to be no Frank Merriwell finish. Reliefer Bruce Stowell got Rumer to fly out to center to end it.

"We can't rely on Rumer all the time," said Bender. "He's been coming through one out of two times in situations like that but we can't expect him to do it all the time. We just gave too much away today."

Scott Lord, who worked the first six innings for Princeton, took the loss, his third in ten decisions. Berlin Vending's Steve Middleman (5-1) got the win.

Four Days for One Win. To earn a berth in the State tournament, Post 76 first had to dispose of Hopewell Post 339 in the Mercer County League playoff. After the teams had split the first two games, the deciding game took four days to complete.

Following two days of rain delay, Hopewell took a 6-1 lead in the decisive third game but it, too, had to be called after 3⅔ innings because of showers.

SINGLES CHAMPION AND RUNNER-UP: Dave Merritt (left) of Plainsboro defeated Princeton's Reed Newhall in the men's A singles tournament (4.5 and above), held last month on the Princeton University courts.

Hopewell manager Gary Vogler had commented at the time that he didn't think the delay would help either team, but Bender knew better: the extra day gave him a rested Rumer.

Rumer, the fourth Post 76 hurler, pitched five innings of scoreless relief while Princeton scored in every one of the last four innings at Moody Park Thursday to snatch an 8-6, comeback win. "Comeback kids. Comeback kids. I knew we could do it if we had enough patience," said Bender.

Princeton scored two runs in the fifth, added two more in the sixth and tied it at six an inning later when Greg Schwartz connected for a two-out RBI single.

In the eighth, Post 76 combined two leadoff walks, an errant pickoff throw, a fielder's choice by Prodanov that plated the go-ahead run and Rumer's third hit of the game, an RBI single, for two runs. Rumer, who fanned six and surrendered just two hits in the five frames he pitched, got the win, his sixth.

The Comeback Kids became the Cardiac Kids when Rumer pitched his way into and out of a jam in the ninth. After he had loaded the bases on three walks sandwiched between two strikeouts, Rumer got Ken Marcellus to bounce out to second to end the longest — and one of the most rewarding — games of the season for the victors.

Princeton's bottom third of the lineup — Douglas, Schwartz and Papciak — accounted for five of the seven runs scored by Post 76 that day.

Gary Kilpatrick Chosen To Succeed Gluckman

Gary Kilpatrick, the highly successful varsity lightweight crew coach at Princeton University for the past 16 seasons, today was named the Tigers' new head coach of heavyweight crew.

Kilpatrick replaces Larry Gluckman, who left the University to become the heavyweight crew coach at Darmouth. Joe Murtaugh, formerly the coach of the lightweight freshmen, is the new coach of the varsity lightweights.

Kilpatrick molded the Princeton lightweights into the most dominant crew in the nation during the 1980's. His oarsmen won four Eastern Association of Rowing Colleges titles since the beginning of the decade and participated in five Henley Royal Regattas in the same time period. Last spring the lightweights finished with an 8-0 regular season record before being edged by Harvard at the EARC Sprints.

Appointed Princeton's freshman lightweight crew coach in 1970 and named varsity lightweight coach in 1972, Kilpatrick has recorded an impressive 87-26 ledger (.770). A highlight of his coaching career came in 1973 when his crew won the Eastern Sprints, defeated Harvard twice, and captured the Thames Challenge Cup in record time at the Henley Royal Regatta in Henley-on-Thames, England.

Kilpatrick is a 1966 graduate of Northeastern, where he earned the Most Valuable Oarsman Award in 1965. While completing his master's degree in physical education at Ithaca College, he established the sport of crew in 1968. In the program's second season he led the Bombers to a seventh-place finish in the national small college rowing championships at the Dad Vail Regatta.

Murtaugh led the lightweight freshmen to a 6-2 record and an Eastern Sprints championship last spring. He is a 1983 graduate of the University of Virginia, where he rowed and subsequently coached from 1984 to 1987. He has coached the Pioneer Valley Rowing Association the past two years in addition to his collegiate responsibilites. The Hartford, Conn.-based rowing club operates from the end of the collegiate season through the United States Nationals.

Murtaugh currently is pursuing a master's degree in Secondary English Education at Virginia. He is expected to complete his degree requirements in the summer of 1989. Freshman heavyweight coach Dan Roock will assume the responsibilities of boathouse manager and coordinator of Princeton's crew course, Lake Carnegie.

University Names Two To Athletic Dept. Posts

The department of athletics at Princeton University has announced two administrative appointments. Amy Campbell has been named assistant to the Associate Director of Athletics for Intercollegiate Sports and Dan Martin has been named Manager of Facilities and Home Events. The announcements were made by Robert J. Myslik, Director of Athletics.

Ms. Campbell has spent the last four years at Connecticut College, where she performed a variety of coaching and administrative stints as budget director, director of intramurals and coordinator of physical education. Her coaching experiences included coaching experiences included the head positions of both the volleyball and lacrosse teams.

She received her bachelor's degree from Wittenberg University in 1975 and completed her master's degree work at Boston University in 1979. She was a coach and physical education intructor at Milton (Mass.) Academy for five years (1979 to 1984) and was the head lacrosse coach at the University of Rhode Island for one year (1984).

Among her primary responsibilities as an assistant to Samuel C. Howell, Associate Director of Athletics, Ms. Campbell will be involved in the scheduling of athletic contests in selected sports and the implementation and monitoring of procedures which ensure the University's compliance with all applicable Ivy, ECAC and NCAA regulations. It is a newly-created position in the department.

Mr. Martin has been employed by the Department of Athletics since January, 1984. In his position as Director of Informal Recreation and Aquatics, Martin supervised all of Dillon Gym, with major responsibility for Dillon Pool. He managed all aspects of the aquatic operation from programming and scheduling to budgeting and maintenance. Martin also helped coordinate many special events such as the Nike All-American Basketball Camp, the Governor's Tennis Tournament, Reunions and several concerts.

He received his bachelor's degree from Barrington College in 1979. His master's degree requirements were fulfilled at the University of Rhode Island in 1983. His employment history includes appointments at the Martin Luther King Center in Newport, R.I., the recreational sports department at the University of Rhode Island, and the International Tennis Hall of Fame in Newport.

Ficarro's Wins, 10-0; League Playoffs Next

Princeton-based Steve Ficarro's Auto Body defeated Jan Creighton's Auto & Towing, 10-0, last week, when the contest was stopped under the 10-run rule.

Scheduled to play its final league game earlier this week against Champale of the American Division, Ficarro's is presently 18-6 in the standings of the National Division of the Mercer County Women's Softball League. Three Seasons is on top at 19-5 while Grove Plumbing, which has two games left, is 18-5. Dot's Girls, in fourth place at 15-9, has clinched the fouth and final playoff berth.

In the post-season formula, it will be one versus four and two versus three in a one-game playoff, the winners vying in a best-of-three series for the league championship.

Against Creighton's at Mercer Park last week, Debbie Smyth, Janet Comerford, Grace Durland, Dee Discavage and Beth Ault all had two hits apiece with Ault driving in three runs. Doreen Ragazzo was the winning pitcher.

The game marked the return to the Ficarro's lineup of veteran Cindy Lombardo, who has missed the last third of the season with a pulled hamstring. "She didn't go full-tilt but she should be ready by the playoffs," predicted Ficarro manager Bob Smyth. Smyth added that starting pitcher Clare Baxter, sidelined with an injured hand, should also be okay in time for the playoffs.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

JAPANESE BEETLES

with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Japanese beetles are causing some concern throughout the area. Some ornamentals commonly injured by adult Japanese beetles are as follows: roses, American linden, Japanese maple, gray birch, crabapples, Virginia creeper, London planetree, black cherry, pussy willow, American mountain-ash, sassafras and flowering ornamental fruit trees. Poison-ivy is also a host plant. High beetle populations plus ample soil moisture equals high grub populations in your lawn later this year.

On the lighter side...

When the Marquess of Hertford had to have a tree removed on his English estate, he searched the world to find the "R.J." who had carved his initials on it in WW II. Through military records, he finally found Robert Johnson in Carthage, N.C. The Marquess was going to fly Johnson to England as his guest and give him a piece of tree with his initials on it. Johnson had to decline. He's serving a 120-year term in prison! (Surely it wasn't for defacing the tree?)

To keep your trees and shrubs healthy, give Woodwinds a call at 924-3500. We are glad to be of service!

Sewers

by Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli of Toms River. In total, these requests exceed the remaining capacity by several hundred thousand gallons per day.

A hearing before the judge, postponed from last Tuesday, will probably be re-scheduled before the Authority's next meeting on August 23. A moratorium on new sewer connections is likely if present capacity is reached before the additional 800,000 gallons are approved.

Long range, projected flow to the year 2000 from the two Princetons, South Brunswick, West Windsor and Plainsboro is estimated at 11.62 million gallons per day. Projected flow to the year 2120 is 14.21 mgd. "It's obvious something has to be done," commented Mr. Bixby after he read out the numbers from a chart prepared by the Authority for the meeting last week.

The projections are based on approved 208 wastewater management plans from the two Princetons and West Windsor, plus information from the planning departments of South Brunswick and Plainsboro. Plainsboro has just completed its 208 plan, and South Brunswick expects to have its plan completed in another month or so. These plans then have to be approved by the DEP and Middlesex County, a process that can take many months. The DEP has said it wants to see Plainsboro's and South Brunswick's 208 plans before acting on the re-rating request.

Mr. Bixby explained that by law, when approved 208 water quality management plans exceed a certain percentage of the Authority's treatment capacity, the Authority must take steps toward expansion.

Princeton Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, seconded by Township Mayor Kate Litvack, would like proposed expansion of the plant to 13.6 million gallons phased over time to allow improvements to other parts of the infrastructure, specifically roads and water distribution system. "It doesn't make sense to us to have one [infrastructure improvement] leap ahead of the others," Mayor Sigmund told the gathering.

Mayors Disagree. Other mayors disagreed with her approach. Plainsboro Mayor Peter Cantu acknowledged there was "an absolute need for an appropriate regional plan" for growth management but said he was opposed to putting the burden on the Sewer Authority and to creating what he called "artificial barriers" to growth. He called Mayor Sigmund's proposal "simplistic" and "lacking in participation."

Addressing Mr. Bixby, Mayor Cantu said, "I concur with what you said at a Chamber of Commerce meeting, that the Authority is not in the land use planning business, it is in the business of providing sewer capacity."

Deputy Mayor Howard Belizo of South Brunswick was equally critical. In his view municipalities have to work out road and water problems without involving the sewer authority, and he gave plenty of examples of his frustration with State agencies in trying to do just that. However, he also felt that in the interests of economy, the SBRSA should be going for the 14.2 mgd future expansion now, given its knowledge of the future, the time it takes to get approvals and to construct, and the fact that "it is a lot cheaper to do it now."

The deputy mayor of West Windsor, Susan Stansbury, agreed that the sewer authority is not a planning agency and added: "Whether we have sewer or not is not going to stop development." She said developers in parts of her township were putting in septic systems when they couldn't get sewers. She agreed with the deputy mayor of South Brunswick that roads, not sewers, were the common link, or common problem, and urged municipalities to down-zone or be "more creative" about their zoning.

In response to Mayor Cantu's criticism of Mayor Sigmund's proposal to phase expansion of the sewer plant, thereby creating an "artificial" moratorium on growth, Mayor Litvack agreed that such a moratorium is "not the best way." But she said "It may be the only way to give us time to plan."

Barry Chalofsky, in charge of 208 water quality management plans at the DEP, said that in the Department's view the "re-rating" to 10.8 mgd is an expansion and subject to the same examination as an expansion to 13.6 mgd. He indicated that the DEP would ultimately approve the expansion, but he also made it clear that the State would not get involved in the issue of allocation of remaining capacity.

Possible Steps. After listening to the discussion — which touched on topics ranging from developers' lawsuits to lack of "teeth" to enforce regional planning — Mr. Bixby went to an easel and with a magic marker sketched out possible next steps. He began with the 9.6 mgd present capacity and the 900,000 gallons awaiting Judge Serpentelli's ruling.

He put down January 1, 1989, as the date by which he expected approval of the re-rated capacity. He then described the plant protection line, which the Authority decided to install when it received information from the two Princetons and South Brunswick of the additional flows that will resulting from the repair of leaky sewer collection systems.

New construction will include building two new tanks, an expansion to the aeration grit chamber at the beginning of the treatment process and a new chlorination tank at the end, as well as a pipe leading from one to the other. According to Michael Dimino, executive director, the plant can handle 27 mgd without overflowing and or causing damage to the system.

In times of heavy rainfall, excess wastewater diluted by rain could be bypassed through the plant protection line but still receive sufficient treatment to meet the State's secondary sewerage treatment standards and meet its water quality standards for the Millstone River. Conceived primarily as protection for the plant, the new system will also relieve bottlenecks within the plant, Mr. Dimino says, and give the plant the abilily to hold more water.

It also puts the Authority in the position, as Mr. Bixby put it, to apply for a re-rating to 11.4 million gallons per day — an intermediary step between 10.8 mgd and 13.6 mgd. Mr. Bixby wrote down July 1, 1990, as the time when the Authority would be in position to apply for the 13.6 mgd expanson.

The cost for that expansion is put at $3.5 million. Another $2 million worth of plant improvements are also planned, he said.

Earlier in the discussion, Mr. Bixby estimated it would take 18 months from the time a decision is made to go ahead with the 13.6 mgd expansion until the start of construction. Close to the end of the meeting, he suggested that during that time the mayors "get in a corner and agree on a road plan — and stop picking on me!"

The meeting ended in agreement that another meeting would be desirable. It will be convened by MSM in conjunction with the planning directors of the two counties, Mercer and Middlesex, which have jurisdiction over the SBRSA and over the 208 water quality and wastewater management process.

Weather

and 1980 were also very hot.

This July has been the second or third hottest in recorded history — and records have been kept for nearly 120 years. Temperatures have run four to five degrees above normal. Also, 5.30 inches of rain fell in July in Princeton, making it among the ten wettest Julys on record.

Mr. Ludlum says that people have been talking to him about the weather more than ever before. "They like to blame things on something — so they blame the weatherman."

Each day, Mr. Ludlum logs in to Barrow, Alaska, a state he visited in June. They had a heat wave there last week, he said. The temperature rose to 55 degrees.

Fall Trips Announced For Senior Citizens

On November 2, the group will visit Lafayette House in "Olde Lafayette Village," Sussex County. The trip includes a musical show, "Juke Box Ladies," which recaptures the sounds of Helen O'Connell, Patti Page, Ella Fitzgerald and others.

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis, and early registration is advised. Registration forms are available at the Recreation Office at 380 Witherspoon Street.
